Human Rights Council

Thirty-ninth session

10–28 September 2018

Agenda item 6

Universal periodic review

Report of the Working Group on the Universal Periodic Review *

Uzbekistan

Introduction

1. The Working Group on the Universal Periodic Review, established in accordance with Human Rights Council resolution 5/1, held its thirtieth session from 7 to 18 May 2018. The review of Uzbekistan was held at the 5th meeting, on 9 May 2018. The delegation of Uzbekistan was headed by the Chairman of the Committee of the Legislative Chamber of the Oliy Majlis (Parliament) on Democratic Institutions, NGOs and citizens' self-government bodies, Akmal Saidov. At its 10th meeting, held on 11 May 2018, the Working Group adopted the report on Uzbekistan.

2. On 10 January 2018, the Human Rights Council selected the following group of rapporteurs (troika) to facilitate the review of Uzbekistan: Côte d'Ivoire, Saudi Arabia and Slovakia.

3. In accordance with paragraph 15 of the annex to Human Rights Council resolution 5/1 and paragraph 5 of the annex to Council resolution 16/21, the following documents were issued for the review of Uzbekistan:

(a) A national report submitted/written presentation made in accordance with paragraph 15 (a) (A/HRC/WG.6/30/UZB/1);

(b) A compilation prepared by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) in accordance with paragraph 15 (b) (A/HRC/WG.6/30/UZB/2);

(c) A summary prepared by OHCHR in accordance with paragraph 15 (c) (A/HRC/WG.6/30/UZB/3).

4. A list of questions prepared in advance by Belgium, Brazil, Germany, Liechtenstein, Portugal, Slovenia, Spain, Sweden and the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland was transmitted to Uzbekistan through the troika. These questions are available on the website of the universal periodic review.

I. Summary of the proceedings of the review process

A. Presentation by the State under review

5. The delegation of Uzbekistan stated that the first ever parliamentary report on the situation of human rights in the country had been published, a broad administrative reform was being implemented, the Office of the Business Ombudsman had been set up, and that, in 2017, Uzbekistan had observed the Year of Dialogue with the People and of Human Interests.

6. Other key steps taken included legislation on overseeing the actions of members of the Government, adopted by Parliament in 2017. Uzbek civil society was developing actively. For the Government, the opinion of every citizen mattered, and citizens had various tools for direct communication. All those measures were in line with the action strategy on five priority areas of development in Uzbekistan for 2017–2021.

7. Uzbekistan had been one of the first Central Asian countries to establish a national human rights institution. Human rights education efforts were continuous, with courses taught in all school classes and at university.

8. Efforts to ensure a genuinely independent judiciary required constitutional reform. The commission for the election of judges under the President's authority had been dissolved and a supreme judicial council had been established as the highest judicial body, and granted constitutional status. The new body was tasked with selecting judges and overseeing the constitutional principle of the independence of the judiciary. Judges henceforth served for life; judges retired at the age of 65, while Supreme Court justices retired at 70. Material and technical support for courts had been transferred from the Ministry of Justice to the Supreme Court itself. An example of progress was the fact that, in 2017, a total of 262 people had been acquitted, up from only 4 people in 2016. Moreover, acquittals or non-custodial sentences had been handed down in high-profile trials of independent journalists and human rights defenders accused of undermining the constitutional order.

9. Civil society reforms concerning non-governmental organizations (NGOs) included the elimination of unjustifiably restrictive registration procedures for them, exemption from 10 types of taxes, removal of the restriction on opening bank accounts and the introduction of electronic registration. More than 9,200 NGOs were active in Uzbekistan, and rent-free “NGO houses” had been established for their use.

10. With regard to corruption, a new law on State procurement had been designed to enhance transparency in public procurement and eradicate corruption.

11. Established in 2017, the Office of the Business Ombudsperson was a non-judicial body created to protect the rights of entrepreneurs. It was independent of government bodies and officials and answerable only to the Constitution and laws. Its activities and tasks, regulated by a law adopted in August 2017, were to shape State policy to help to defend and develop entrepreneurship, to ensure that State bodies respected entrepreneurs’ rights, to provide legal support to entrepreneurs, and to guarantee freedom of entrepreneurship. It had already examined more than 1,500 complaints, and a helpline and a website had also been created to communicate with entrepreneurs. With regard to proposals to restore entrepreneurs’ rights, out of 20 cases, there had been 8 warnings and 2 lawsuits for $500,000.

B. Interactive dialogue and responses by the State under review

12. During the interactive dialogue, 77 delegations made statements. Recommendations made during the dialogue are contained in section II of the present report.

13. Belgium welcomed the release of several political prisoners and the easing of some restrictions on freedom of expression. It noted, however, the significant gap between the international obligations of Uzbekistan and their implementation on the ground.

14. Argentina commended Uzbekistan for having adopted its action strategy on five priority areas of development.

15. Bulgaria encouraged Uzbekistan to take steps to implement the new legislation and public policies, and to enhance the independence and effectiveness of the Human Rights Commissioner (Ombudsman) in conformity with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (the Paris Principles).

16. While commending Uzbekistan for addressing human rights challenges, including child labour in the cotton sector, Canada expressed hope that Uzbekistan would continue its progress in addressing harassment of persons, including of civil society actors and journalists.

17. Chile appreciated the State’s cooperation with the United Nations and the various constitutional amendments made to broaden rights and the protection of freedoms. It regretted the suspension of registration of international human rights organizations. Chile noted the absence of women in the delegation of the State under review.

18. China welcomed the efforts made by Uzbekistan to promote and protect human rights, including the progress witnessed in economic and social development, poverty reduction, the raising of living standards, gender equality and promotion of the rights of women, children, persons with disabilities and other vulnerable sectors of society.

19. Côte d’Ivoire welcomed the State’s strengthened cooperation with OHCHR and human rights mechanisms. It encouraged Uzbekistan to strengthen its legislative framework for human rights, in particular for the rights of women, children, persons with disabilities and migrants.

20. Cuba welcomed the measures taken to strengthen women’s rights and the judiciary, and highlighted the improved quality of education witnessed at all levels.

21. Czechia noted with interest the State’s adoption of its action strategy on five priority areas of development in Uzbekistan for 2017–2021.

22. The Democratic People’s Republic of Korea welcomed the ratification of several international instruments, the national plan of action for 2014–2016, the strengthened dialogue and cooperation with United Nations mechanisms and the consolidation of the legislative framework for human rights.

23. Denmark emphasized that dialogue with the Subcommittee on Prevention of Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment was highly valuable to all States working to prevent torture and ill-treatment. The Convention against Torture Initiative stood ready to explore avenues to assist Uzbekistan.

24. Egypt welcomed the efforts made by Uzbekistan to counter corruption and human trafficking, and to establish mechanisms to promote and protect civil and political rights in the country.

25. Estonia expressed its concern regarding the situation of freedoms of expression, assembly, association and movement, and at reports of harassment, surveillance, arbitrary arrest and detention, torture and ill-treatment of journalists and human rights defenders.

26. Finland remained concerned about continued reports of torture and ill-treatment in detention and of forced labour, especially in the cotton harvesting sector. It urged Uzbekistan to ensure respect for the freedoms of expression, association and assembly, in accordance with international human rights standards.

27. France welcomed the improvements made to the legislative framework of the rule of law and the reforms in the justice sector. It also noted the reduction in the incidence of forced labour and the greater space accorded to civil society.

28. Georgia welcomed the national plan of action for the implementation of recommendations made by international human rights mechanisms and the State's cooperation with OHCHR. It encouraged Uzbekistan to take steps to ensure that relevant policies and legislation were in full compliance with international standards.

29. Germany welcomed the reforms made by Uzbekistan and its commitment to abolishing child and forced labour, to releasing political detainees and to preventing torture. It remained concerned about restrictions on civil society and NGOs, and ongoing reports of torture in prisons.

30. Ghana welcomed the progress made in protecting the rights of persons with disabilities. It expressed concern, however, about alleged cases of unlawful arrest, detention, torture, ill-treatment and conviction of members of religious minorities.

31. Greece welcomed the national plan of action (2014–2016) to implement the recommendations made by international human rights mechanisms. It also welcomed the recent visit by the Special Rapporteur on freedom of religion or belief to Uzbekistan.

32. Paraguay applauded the national plan of action for the implementation of recommendations made by the treaty bodies, particularly the State's plan to develop cooperation with OHCHR. The coordination of efforts was crucial to the ratification of human rights instruments.

33. Hungary commended the release of political prisoners and the lowering of restrictions on freedom of expression. It welcomed the visits conducted in 2017 by the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights and the Special Rapporteur on freedom of religion or belief, and also welcomed the road map on cooperation with OHCHR.

34. While welcoming the adoption of a plan of action to combat trafficking in persons, Iceland expressed its concern at the lack of investigations into prosecution of and convictions on trafficking in women and girls.

35. India appreciated the consolidation of the legal status of the Office of the Human Rights Commissioner and the greater effectiveness of the National Centre for Human Rights. It praised some of the public welfare measures taken for the poor, children with disabilities and the elderly.

36. Indonesia praised the steps taken to ratify the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, and the action strategy on five priority areas of development for 2017–2021.

37. The Islamic Republic of Iran commended the State for its cooperation with international human rights mechanisms, the steps taken to ratify the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities and the 2017 presidential decree on supporting persons with disabilities.

38. Iraq welcomed the constitutional and legislative reforms to promote human rights, and the national programmes to fight corruption and human trafficking.

39. Poland welcomed the efforts made by Uzbekistan to ratify the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities.

40. Italy praised the State's enhanced cooperation with international organizations, its constructive dialogue with the special procedures of the Human Rights Council, and the ongoing human rights reforms.

41. Japan welcomed the State's emphasis on judicial and socioeconomic reform and the strengthening of civil society in the action strategy on five priority areas of development for 2017–2021, the Administrative Procedures Act and the Administrative Litigation Act.

42. Kazakhstan welcomed the increased cooperation of Uzbekistan with the treaty bodies and the special procedures of the Human Rights Council, and the efforts it had made to strengthen the independence of the judiciary, to reform the public management system and to preserve interethnic and interfaith harmony, while addressing the cultural and linguistic needs of minorities.

43. Kuwait noted the progress made in the fields of human rights, counter-terrorism, non-discrimination, political and civil participation, and cooperation with human rights mechanisms.

44. Kyrgyzstan welcomed the significant progress made since the previous review cycle, pointing out that the new legislative changes and practical steps would have a significant impact on the promotion of human rights in Uzbekistan.

45. The Lao People's Democratic Republic welcomed the action strategy on five priority areas of development. It also welcomed the bill on guarantees of equal rights and opportunities for women and men.

46. Lithuania welcomed the State's enhanced cooperation with OHCHR and the progress made in eliminating child labour, and the release of political activists, human rights defenders and journalists who had been detained.

47. Malaysia welcomed the progress made in gender equality and the promotion and protection of the rights of women, children and persons with disabilities. It also welcomed the progress made in human rights education, social welfare, health, and poverty reduction and eradication.

48. Maldives welcomed the efforts made to strengthen the Office of the Human Rights Commissioner in accordance with the Paris

Principles. It also welcomed the national plan of action to implement the recommendations made by international human rights mechanisms and the action strategy on five priority areas of development for 2017–2021.

49. Mexico acknowledged the policy of openness of the Government and the measures taken on the issue of disability.

50. Montenegro welcomed the agreement with OHCHR and called upon the Government to issue a standing invitation to all special procedures. It invited the State to repeal article 120 of the Criminal Code, which criminalized consensual sexual activities between adult males.

51. Morocco commended the action strategy on five priority areas of development for 2017–2021 and the steps that the State had taken to ratify the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities. It welcomed the measures taken in the areas of corruption, domestic violence, education, health and women's empowerment.

52. The delegation of Uzbekistan stated that, with regard to cotton harvesting, measures had been taken to eradicate forced labour. The President had addressed the issue, and a parliamentary commission had been set up to ensure respect for labour rights. The Government was working together with representatives of Cotton Campaign, an international NGO that monitored the cotton sector worldwide. Various measures had been taken to improve the situation: harvest wages had been increased by 250 per cent in 2017; a sector-wide review, from planting to harvesting, had been conducted; and cotton growing was being phased out on low-yielding land. Annual production of cotton thread was around one ton; 72.5 per cent of the cotton harvest was processed, representing some 750,000 tons. Two major cotton-producing projects with a budget of $464 million had led to the creation of more than 6,500 jobs.

53. The delegation stated that targeted social protection measures had been taken for persons with disabilities. Efforts were continuing to ensure the compliance of infrastructure with the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities and to secure its ratification. Some 20 NGOs worked directly to help persons with disabilities, while more than 600 NGOs offered additional assistance, including free courses in sign language and Braille. Steps were being taken to guarantee better quality of prosthetics and other rehabilitation devices required by persons with disabilities. The Government had launched a programme for the period 2017–2020 in support of persons with disabilities.

54. Efforts to prevent violence in places of detention and protect citizens against torture emphasized prevention. In 2017, additional measures had been taken to strengthen guarantees for defendants' rights and freedoms. Article 1 of the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment had been fully implemented by article 235 of the Criminal Code, which contained a ban on torture. A procedure had been introduced for complaints concerning unlawful conduct by law enforcement officials. Henceforth, prosecutors would regularly verify the conditions of those in pretrial detention facilities or holding centres with the help of audio and video surveillance. In addition, the Parliamentary Ombudsman and the Business Ombudsman provided independent monitoring. New restrictions had been introduced regarding the admissibility of evidence. Evidence was inadmissible if it had been obtained unlawfully or in violation of the Criminal Code; if a defendant's rights had been infringed in the process; if information came from an unknown source; or if testimony did not meet the required standards.

55. The delegation reported on efforts made to prevent torture in places of detention. Some 2,500 video surveillance cameras had been installed in pretrial detention facilities and holding centres; 123 had been installed in cells, and plans had been made for the installation of an additional 285 cameras. To ensure a timely response to reports by citizens on cases of torture, in 2017, the Ministry of Internal Affairs had opened special premises for receiving citizens and taking their complaints. Some 40 complaints concerning people in custody had been lodged, as a result of which 10 officials would be relieved of their duties.

56. A law had been adopted on 17 April 2018 to fight human trafficking. There was a need to align the Criminal Code with relevant international instruments, such as the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime. One noteworthy step taken at the national level had been the establishment of an interagency commission to fight human trafficking. In 2017, a total of 204 criminal cases had been brought on grounds of sexual exploitation, and 32 criminal cases for labour exploitation (down from 81 in 2016).

57. Additional measures had been taken to ensure gender equality. The Committee for Women was very active in that respect, and a law on combating domestic violence had been adopted. At the national level there were over more than 30 laws on the protection of gender equality. Efforts were being made to ensure equal pay for work of equal value. Plans had been made to create the position of ombudsman for children and youth.

58. Nepal welcomed the emphasis given to countering corruption, fighting human trafficking and promoting health and quality education. It also welcomed the State's engagement with the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights and other United Nations human rights mechanisms. Nepal called upon Uzbekistan to continue its measures to strengthen the independence of the judiciary, to fight domestic and gender violence and to ensure gender equality.

59. The Netherlands welcomed the visits made to Uzbekistan by the High Commissioner and the Special Rapporteur on freedom of religion or belief in 2017. It also welcomed the efforts made to eliminate child labour and to ratify all relevant conventions of the International Labour Organization (ILO). It regretted the situation of lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and intersex persons in Uzbekistan.

60. Nigeria commended the State for its cooperation with human rights mechanisms. It welcomed the State's human rights plans and programmes, and the efforts it had made to uphold the principles of equality and non-discrimination, and in countering terrorism.

61. Norway noted the greater openness and international engagement of Uzbekistan, the release of political prisoners, the removal of persons from black lists, the increasing freedom of the press and the progress made in abolishing forced labour. Restrictions on civil society and freedom of expression, association and belief, however, remained.

62.Oman appreciated the amendments made to the Constitution in 2017, and laws and regulations supporting social services for the elderly, persons with disabilities and other vulnerable groups.

63.Pakistan welcomed the measures taken on human rights and freedoms, and the action programme against human trafficking for 2017–2018.

64.Honduras praised Uzbekistan for its implementation of the recommendations that it had accepted.

65.The Philippines commended Uzbekistan for its efforts to institutionalize the protection of victims of trafficking by including a provision of medical support, and also to improve the normative framework to strengthen the protection of human rights and fundamental freedoms.

66.Ireland welcomed the State's increased cooperation with international human rights mechanisms, as shown by the visits of the High Commissioner and the Special Rapporteur on freedom of religion or belief. Reports were still being received on the use of torture and ill-treatment against detainees and prisoners, and on the harassment, arbitrary arrest and detention, torture and ill-treatment of human rights defenders, journalists and government critics.

67.Portugal acknowledged ongoing reforms effected by Uzbekistan to ensure its socioeconomic development.

68.Qatar praised the State for the constitutional amendments made to bolster human rights, the adoption of the action strategy on five priority areas and the plan to support persons with disabilities. It welcomed also the efforts made to improve equality of opportunity for persons with disabilities.

69.The Republic of Korea welcomed the measures taken to strengthen the independence of the judiciary, the institutionalization of a constitutional court, the amendments made to the Citizenship Act and the regulations introduced to increase freedom of movement inside and across borders.

70.The Russian Federation welcomed the efforts made by Uzbekistan to approve national plans of action to implement the recommendations made by the treaty bodies and to amend the Constitution, particularly the provisions on the public control of activities conducted by the authorities.

71.Saudi Arabia acknowledged the increased level of cooperation of Uzbekistan with the treaty bodies and the special procedures, and its adoption of the memorandum of understanding between the National Centre for Human Rights and OHCHR.

72.Senegal praised Uzbekistan for its ratification of the ILO Freedom of Association and Protection of the Right to Organise Convention, 1948 (No. 87) and its plans to ratify the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities.

73.Serbia commended the State for the measures taken to bring national human rights institutions into line with the Paris Principles and to adopt plans of action to implement international human rights standards. It encouraged Uzbekistan to take measures to eliminate maternal and newborn mortality.

74.Slovakia praised the efforts made to strengthen media freedom and active cooperation with ILO in tackling child labour. It expressed concern at the fact that many journalists remained in custody.

75.Slovenia welcomed the improvement of the situation of human rights, pointing to active cooperation of Uzbekistan with civil society to strengthen the judicial system and raise awareness on human rights. It pointed to reports of forced labour and hazardous working conditions.

76.Spain urged Uzbekistan to address discrimination against lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and intersex persons and to take steps to investigate and punish acts of violence and hate crimes.

77.The State of Palestine noted with appreciation the steps taken by Uzbekistan to introduce reforms to protect human rights and to sign the memorandum of understanding between the National Centre for Human Rights and OHCHR.

78.According to Sweden, Uzbekistan had taken positive steps to improve the situation of human rights, such as the release of human rights defenders and its review of many prison sentences. Nonetheless, an unknown number of individuals were still in prison on politically motivated charges.

79.Switzerland commended Uzbekistan for its wide-ranging reforms and encouraged it to fully implement its development strategy for 2017–2021. It welcomed the release of prisoners of conscience, but noted with concern that many people were still detained for having expressed their political views.

80.Tajikistan acknowledged the measures taken by Uzbekistan to adopt the plan of action for developing cooperation with OHCHR, to fight human trafficking and to provide legal protection and medical care for the victims of trafficking, and also the steps it had taken to eliminate child and forced labour.

81.Togo praised Uzbekistan for the improvements made to the constitutional and legislative framework and the adoption of international norms to strengthen cooperation with the treaty bodies and other human rights mechanisms.

82.Turkmenistan noted the increased level of cooperation between Uzbekistan, OHCHR, the treaty bodies, the special procedures and international NGOs on questions of human rights and freedoms.

83.The United Arab Emirates welcomed the adoption of a number of national plans of action, and enquired about any preliminary conclusions reached since Uzbekistan had adopted its national plan of action on human trafficking the previous year.

84. The United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland noted the positive developments in the situation of human rights in Uzbekistan, but also the concerns remaining with regard to freedom of expression and association.

85. The United States of America commended Uzbekistan for the steps taken to expand space for civil society and reduce structural challenges for NGOs. It urged Uzbekistan to continue its efforts to address torture, and to invite the Special Rapporteur on torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment to visit the country. It noted with concern the wide-ranging restrictions on peaceful religious activity and the fact that reports were still being received of cases of adult forced labour.

86. Uruguay hailed the implementation by Uzbekistan of its plans of action, including its development strategy. It hoped that the State would consider ratifying the Rome Statute and the Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of Their Families.

87. The Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela applauded the State's social protection plans for older people and persons with disability, the medical care policies for rural dwellers, mothers and children, and the national system for development goals focused on employment and social protection.

88. Yemen welcomed the efforts made by Uzbekistan to strengthen human rights, particularly its adoption of the action strategy on five priority areas of development and the strengthening of the constitutional guarantee with regard to submitting complaints with the authorities.

89. Afghanistan commended the Government of Uzbekistan for its efforts to empower the Office of the Human Rights Commissioner, and encouraged the State to take further action to promote and protect human rights.

90. Algeria commended the State for its implementation of the programme of action to combat human trafficking and the inclusion of all the categories of human rights in its action strategy on five priority areas of development, and encouraged Uzbekistan to monitor the outcome of steps taken.

91. Brazil commended Uzbekistan for its continued efforts to reduce poverty, to provide access to education and health and to combat infant mortality and malnutrition. It encouraged the State to extend a standing invitation to the special procedures.

92. Armenia encouraged Uzbekistan to expand human rights training and education. It noted the State's use of modern information and communications technology in its dialogues with the public, and encouraged Uzbekistan to strengthen public and civil society dialogue in the implementation of human rights programmes.

93. Australia commended Uzbekistan for its decree against forced labour and for its progress in the protection of freedom of expression. It welcomed the measures taken by the State to improve the situation of human rights of detainees and to strengthen protection against ill-treatment and torture.

94. Azerbaijan praised the achievements of Uzbekistan in its incorporation of international human rights standards into the national education system. It commended Uzbekistan for the progress made in delivering public services in a transparent and efficient manner.

95. Belarus praised the comprehensive and systemic approach taken by Uzbekistan to implement human rights policy through its action strategy on five priority areas of development and the measures taken to promote employment, improve the quality of public services and increase cooperation with OHCHR and its regional office.

96. The delegation of Uzbekistan stated that the country was endeavouring to guarantee the rights and freedoms of journalists and to strengthen the freedom of the media to operate. The persecution of journalists was not an issue, as reflected in the comment by Lithuania to the effect that no journalists were currently detained in the country.

97. With regard to issues relating to lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and intersex persons, Uzbekistan, like the other States members of the Organization of Islamic Cooperation, wished to preserve family values and was therefore not planning to amend article 120 of the Criminal Code.

98. With regard to the urban-rural divide mentioned, Uzbekistan gave priority to various recommendations on decent housing. A nationwide programme launched in 2016 had led to the construction of 18,000 well-equipped buildings and the renovation of 130,000 buildings in rural areas. Furthermore, a one-off "rental amnesty" had been designed to facilitate the establishment of property title. Other steps were being taken to implement economic and cultural changes that would benefit all rural dwellers, relating, inter alia, to the rights to decent work, education and affordable health care.

99. Determined efforts were being made to reduce statelessness. Over the past five years, 1,500 stateless persons had been granted Uzbek citizenship. Moreover, efforts were being made to ensure comprehensive registration of all births. In a recent report, the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) had pointed out that Uzbekistan had a birth registration rate of 100 per cent. Furthermore, a campaign had been launched to register children directly in remote areas. The Aral Sea area was a development priority for the Government. In 2017 alone, some 150,000 people had gained access to drinking water thanks to the renovation of water pipes and water supply plants. The Government had earmarked $2.5 billion for the development of the region.

100. The delegation informed the Human Rights Council that, for the first time in 15 years, Uzbekistan had extended an invitation to the Special Rapporteur on freedom of religion or belief. The State intended to work closely also with the Special Rapporteur on the independence of judges and lawyers. One priority of the current judicial reform was the ratification of international conventions and United Nations instruments. For example, Uzbekistan would soon ratify the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities.

II. Conclusions and/or recommendations

101. The recommendations formulated during the interactive dialogue/listed below have been examined by Uzbekistan and enjoy the support of Uzbekistan:
