

General Assembly

Human Rights Council

Thirty-ninth session

10–28 September 2018

Agenda item 6

Universal periodic review

Report of the Working Group on the Universal Periodic Review *

Canada

Introduction

1. The Working Group on the Universal Periodic Review, established in accordance with Human Rights Council resolution 5/1, held its thirtieth session from 7 to 18 May 2018. The review of Canada was held at the 9th meeting, on 11 May 2018. The delegation of Canada was headed by the Minister of Justice and Attorney General of Canada, Jody Wilson-Raybould. At its 14th meeting, held on 15 May 2018, the Working Group adopted the report on Canada.

2. On 10 January 2018, the Human Rights Council selected the following group of rapporteurs (troika) to facilitate the review of Canada: Georgia, Kenya and Switzerland.

3. In accordance with paragraph 15 of the annex to Human Rights Council resolution 5/1 and paragraph 5 of the annex to Council resolution 16/21, the following documents were issued for the review of Canada:

- (a) A national report submitted/written presentation made in accordance with paragraph 15 (a) (A/HRC/WG.6/30/CAN/1);
- (b) A compilation prepared by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) in accordance with paragraph 15 (b) (A/HRC/WG.6/30/CAN/2);
- (c) A summary prepared by OHCHR in accordance with paragraph 15 (c) (A/HRC/WG.6/30/CAN/3).

4. A list of questions prepared in advance by Belgium, Brazil, Germany, Liechtenstein, Portugal, Slovenia, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, the United States of America and Uruguay was transmitted to Canada through the troika. These questions are available on the website of the universal periodic review.

I. Summary of the proceedings of the review process

A. Presentation by the State under review

5. The Minister of Justice and Attorney General of Canada introduced the national report of Canada to the Working Group on the Universal Periodic Review.

6. She recalled that, in accordance with the country's federal structure, and as enshrined in the Constitution, responsibility for implementing the international human rights obligations of Canada was shared among the federal, provincial and territorial governments.

7. The strong commitment of governments in Canada to human rights had been reaffirmed during a meeting of federal, provincial and territorial ministers responsible for human rights in December 2017. They had made a number of commitments to strengthen intergovernmental collaboration and public dialogue on human rights and had discussed key priorities in relation to the international human rights obligations of the country.

8. The indigenous populations of Canada — First Nations, Inuit and Métis peoples — faced a number of challenges relative to the rest of the population, including greater rates of poverty and food insecurity, higher likelihood of experiencing poor housing conditions, lower education outcomes, and greater health disparities. Canada had committed to achieving true, meaningful and lasting reconciliation based on the recognition and implementation of indigenous rights.

9. In February 2018, the Prime Minister had announced that the Government would, in full partnership with First Nations, Inuit and Métis Peoples, develop a recognition and implementation of rights framework as the basis for all relations between indigenous peoples and the federal Government. That would build on the country's ongoing reconciliation efforts, including its unqualified endorsement of the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples.

10. In December 2015, the Truth and Reconciliation Commission had released its final report, which included 94 calls to action. The Government had signalled that it would fully implement the calls to action in partnership with indigenous communities, the provinces, territories and other partners.

11. Indigenous women and girls in Canada were disproportionately affected by all forms of violence. Canada was committed to ensuring the safety and security of all women and children in the country. During the second cycle of the universal periodic review, many delegations had recommended that Canada launch an inquiry into missing and murdered indigenous women and girls. The National Inquiry had been launched in December 2015 and was an important step towards ending that ongoing national tragedy. Furthermore, in its broad review of the criminal justice system, the Government was looking, among other things, at ways to address the overrepresentation of indigenous women and girls as victims of crime.

12. The Government had renewed its commitment to gender equality, including by appointing the first federal minister fully dedicated to gender issues, and the first gender-balanced federal Cabinet. With regard to the gender wage gap, the Government recognized that pay equity was a human right and had taken action in that regard, including at the provincial level.

13. Gender-based violence remained a significant barrier to achieving gender equality. In order to address that issue, in 2017, the Government had announced the first federal strategy to end gender-based violence, which included investments in important programmes for at-risk populations, including indigenous women and girls. The Government had also introduced numerous criminal law reforms to better protect women and all Canadians from violence, including strengthened sexual assault laws and responses to intimate partner violence.

14. A key priority was increasing the inclusion of persons with disabilities in society. Following extensive consultations, the Government expected to introduce legislation in 2018 to transform how accessibility was addressed at the federal level.

15. Canada had inclusive migration policies that supported diversity and a two-way approach to integration. The Government worked closely with provincial, territorial, municipal and community-based partners to ensure the successful integration of newcomers, including refugees. It also strove to address vulnerabilities faced by some immigrant subgroups, such as women who were victims of gender-based violence.

16. Canada recognized the importance of addressing racial and religious discrimination and crimes motivated by hate and the challenges that remained in those areas.

17. The visit of the Working Group of Experts on People of African Descent in 2017 had highlighted many issues of discrimination against African Canadians. The Government was making significant new investments towards a new national anti-racism approach, including measures to address the challenges faced by Black Canadians. Action had also been taken at the provincial level, including in Ontario and Quebec.

18. Canada had an excellent agenda to promote equality for lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, queer and intersex persons, protect their rights and address violence and discrimination against them, both historical and current. Several measures had been adopted recently in that regard.

19. While Canada was a prosperous country, too many Canadians did not share in that prosperity. A poverty reduction strategy was therefore being developed. Additionally, several provinces, territories and municipalities also had stand-alone poverty reduction strategies.

20. Canada had recently unveiled its first National Housing Strategy to help ensure that Canadians had access to affordable housing that met their needs. It was also funding the creation of three distinctions-based (culturally specific) housing strategies for First Nations, Inuit and Métis communities.

21. As part of the federal Government's commitment to creating a better, fairer immigration detention system, in 2016, it had launched a new framework for immigration detention, which included new funding to improve detention infrastructure and provide better medical and mental health care.

22. Following national security consultations held in 2016, the Government had put forward new legislation that included the establishment of a national security and intelligence review agency and an intelligence commissioner. Taken together with other recent changes, the legislation would create a robust accountability framework for the country's national security and intelligence activities.

B. Interactive dialogue and responses by the State under review

23. During the interactive dialogue, 107 delegations made statements. Recommendations made during the dialogue are to be found in section II of the present report.

24. Côte d'Ivoire encouraged Canada to continue its efforts to better consider the needs of minorities and indigenous peoples.

25. Croatia regretted that many indigenous communities lived without equitable access to health, education, food, housing and safe drinking water.

26. Cuba stated that indigenous peoples in Canada still faced different types of challenges, including higher rates of poverty and food insecurity.

27. Cyprus encouraged the Canadian authorities to strengthen their efforts to address unemployment faced by disadvantaged and marginalized groups.
28. Czechia welcomed measures taken to advance women's rights and gender equality, and the intention of the Government to ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment.
29. The Democratic People's Republic of Korea was concerned at the persistence of racial discrimination, the overincarceration of aboriginals and inequality.
30. Denmark stated that violence against women disproportionately affected indigenous women and that adequate levels of services and protection must be ensured.
31. Ecuador welcomed the adoption of the National Housing Strategy and invited Canada to reconsider Sustainable Development Goal 11 in its implementation.
32. Egypt urged Canada to provide the necessary protection for Muslims to enable them to participate in religious activities.
33. El Salvador commended the development of programmes and strategies for the protection of the rights of older persons.
34. Estonia commended Canada for its full support for the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples.
35. Finland encouraged Canada to continue efforts to eliminate violence against women, especially indigenous women and girls, focusing on its root causes.
36. France welcomed the high level of protection of human rights in Canada.
37. Gabon welcomed measures taken for gender equality and to combat poverty, racism and gender-based violence.
38. Georgia welcomed the commitment of Canada to providing protection to refugees through its inclusive legal framework.
39. Germany commended Canada for its strong record on the protection of civil and political rights.
40. Ghana encouraged Canada to take steps to eliminate structural obstacles that threatened the realization of women's political rights.
41. Greece welcomed measures taken with a view to achieving equality and non-discrimination for indigenous peoples.
42. Haiti acknowledged the progress made in several areas since the second review cycle.
43. The Holy See appreciated the attention paid by the Government to freedom of religion.
44. Honduras congratulated Canada on the progress made in implementing the recommendations received during the previous reviews.
45. Hungary called upon the Government to take all appropriate measures to address violence against indigenous women.
46. Iceland commended Canada for its decision to set up an inquiry into missing and murdered indigenous women and girls.
47. India noted the measures taken to ensure the rights of indigenous peoples and advance gender equality.
48. Indonesia noted the role of Canada in advancing the rights of women worldwide.
49. The Islamic Republic of Iran was concerned about cases of racism and hate crimes against minorities.
50. Iraq noted the Government's efforts to protect the rights of indigenous peoples, youth, older persons and migrants.
51. Ireland urged Canada to ratify the human rights instruments it had not yet ratified.
52. Argentina commended Canada for its support for the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples.
53. Italy appreciated the measures taken to promote gender equality and women's empowerment and to combat gender-based violence, and the full support of Canada for the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples.
54. Japan commended Canada for its initiatives to empower women and its accession to the major human rights treaties.
55. Kazakhstan welcomed the measures taken to advance gender equality, but noted that the situation of indigenous peoples remained problematic.
56. Kenya encouraged Canada to continue implementing human rights for all in the country.
57. Libya noted the legal measures taken to promote freedom of religion and belief.
58. Madagascar was concerned about existing inequalities in access to education and about violence against indigenous women.
59. Malaysia encouraged Canada to embrace moderation as an approach in countering extremism in all its forms.
60. Mali noted progress in combating racism and violence against women and children.

61. Mauritania encouraged Canada to continue combating discrimination in employment and crimes motivated by racial hatred, including crimes against Muslims.
62. Mexico recognized the cooperation of Canada with the universal human rights system and invited it to ratify the relevant international instruments.
63. Mongolia welcomed the commitment to implementing the calls to action of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission of Canada.
64. Montenegro urged Canada to strengthen its efforts to develop a policy to combat gender-based violence against women.
65. Morocco welcomed the progress made on protecting the rights of persons with disabilities and of children, including protection from cyberbullying.
66. Mozambique commended Canada for its engagement on the issue of refugee resettlement.

71. New Zealand welcomed measures taken by the Government to implement new federal accessibility legislation.
72. Nigeria was encouraged by initiatives aimed at addressing racism and racial discrimination.
73. Norway noted the positive steps taken since the previous review.
74. Pakistan noted the need to address racial profiling by the police, security agencies and other authorities.
75. Panama highlighted the implementation by Canada of the Feminist International Assistance Policy, focusing on women's rights.
76. Paraguay was concerned that temporary migrant workers lacked access to basic health services.
77. Peru welcomed the progress achieved by Canada on indigenous rights and the right to housing and on combating poverty.
78. The Philippines welcomed the achievements made in promoting and protecting human rights.
79. Portugal welcomed the improvements to the migrant detention system and the considerable reduction in detention of children.
80. Qatar welcomed the commitment of Canada to protecting human rights, particularly those of indigenous peoples.
81. The Republic of Korea noted the positive developments in the dialogue with indigenous peoples to address property rights issues.
82. Responding to questions concerning access to justice, the delegation of Canada said that the Government had amended the Supreme Court judicial appointments process to increase the openness, transparency and diversity of the judiciary. Women, indigenous peoples, members of visible minorities, lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and intersex persons and persons with disabilities were represented among the 100 judicial appointments announced in 2017 alone. Moreover, legal aid funding to provincial governments had been increased to ensure that indigenous peoples, ethnic and racial groups had access to legal services to enable them to navigate the justice system effectively.
83. The delegation recalled that, in accordance with the federal system, the implementation of many provisions of the human rights treaties to which Canada was a party rested with the provincial governments. The actions taken by those governments included measures adopted by Newfoundland and Labrador on immigration and refugees and steps taken by Quebec with regard to gender equality and gender-based violence.
84. The provincial, territorial and federal governments had agreed to complete their consideration of the accession by Canada to the Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities. Canada was also considering becoming a party to the Optional Protocol to the Convention against Torture, as well as options to implement that instrument.
85. The federal Government had established a Canadian Ombudsperson for Responsible Enterprise to address human rights obligations arising from Canadian business conduct abroad. It had also set up a multi-stakeholder advisory body that reported to the Government on responsible business conduct. The Ombudsperson would be empowered to investigate complaints relating to allegations of human rights abuses arising from Canadian companies' activities abroad, including through independent fact-finding missions.
86. Canada was committed to orderly migration, which included providing protection to genuine refugees, based on a well-founded fear of persecution. Several steps had been taken to protect vulnerable, refugee and asylum-seeking women and girls.
87. The delegation provided additional details on action taken to promote the rights of indigenous peoples, on gender equality and on gender-based violence.
88. The delegation noted that Canada was committed to ending trafficking in persons at home and abroad by focusing on preventing human trafficking, protecting victims, prosecuting offenders and developing partnerships domestically and internationally. In Canada, trafficking in persons was specifically prohibited by six offences under the Criminal Code.

89.The Republic of Moldova welcomed the advances in gender equality and the initiative to develop the first Canadian youth policy.

90.Romania welcomed the commitment of Canada to gender equality and various initiatives on youth.

91.The Russian Federation noted with concern an increase in violence against women, particularly indigenous women.

92.Rwanda encouraged Canada to adopt more proactive measures to combat racial discrimination, including by addressing cases of racial profiling.

103.The Syrian Arab Republic noted concerns relating to persons living in poverty, particularly those from vulnerable and marginalized groups.

104.Thailand welcomed the efforts of Canada to promote corporate responsibility to respect human rights, in line with the Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights: Implementing the United Nations “Protect, Respect and Remedy” Framework.

105.Togo commended Canada for the priority given to promoting gender equality and action on climate change.

106.Trinidad and Tobago noted the continued commitment of Canada to advancing the rights of women and girls and to the situation of children and youth.

107.Tunisia commended Canada for its progress on gender equality, as well as efforts made for asylum seekers and migrants.

108.The United Kingdom commended the creation of the National Inquiry into Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women and Girls.

109.The United States praised efforts towards reconciliation with peoples of the First Nations, and noted the strategy to combat gender-based violence.

110.Uruguay welcomed the progress made by Canada in terms of women’s empowerment and gender equality.

111.The Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela acknowledged the multifaceted approaches adopted by Canada in addressing gender-based violence.

112.Viet Nam welcomed the policies and strategies adopted on gender equality, access to housing and poverty reduction.

113.Zambia welcomed the refugee reform, but was concerned about the backlog facing the Immigration Refugee Board.

114.Afghanistan congratulated Canada on its legal and policy framework for the integration of migrants and asylum seekers.

115.Albania praised the preventative measures being taken to address inequalities between women and men, with a special focus on women’s empowerment.

116.Algeria welcomed the measures adopted for indigenous peoples and training on human rights education.

117.Angola congratulated Canada on the measures taken to reduce social inequalities, especially among indigenous peoples and minorities.

118.Armenia encouraged Canada to continue with its effective measures to ensure the protection of the rights of indigenous peoples.

119. Australia applauded Canada on its formal apology to, and reparations for, historical discrimination against the lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and intersex community.
120. Azerbaijan was concerned about the reported continuation of racial profiling on the part of the police, security agencies and border agents.
121. Bahrain welcomed the Government's continued commitment to addressing human rights issues.
122. Belarus noted the efforts of Canada to combat trafficking in persons at the international level and the adoption of the National Housing Strategy.
123. Belgium noted the persistence of violence and discrimination against indigenous women and women from ethnic minorities.
124. Benin congratulated Canada for implementing the recommendations received during the previous review.
125. Bhutan welcomed the constructive engagement of Canada with the special procedures.
126. The Plurinational State of Bolivia welcomed the Principles Respecting the Government of Canada's Relationship with Indigenous Peoples.
127. Bosnia and Herzegovina appreciated the fact that the national report had been prepared in collaboration with federal, provincial and territorial governments.
128. Botswana requested an update on the implementation of a recommendation it had made during the previous cycle on eliminating racial profiling.
129. Brazil commended Canada for its commitment to gender equality and to protecting the rights of lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and intersex persons.
130. Bulgaria commended Canada for establishing a permanent mechanism for dialogue with the indigenous population.
131. Burkina Faso urged Canada to fully implement the recommendations that it accepted.
132. Chile asked about measures to protect the physical integrity of intersex children and to ensure their informed consent.
133. China noted the efforts made by Canada to promote and protect human rights, but was concerned about the remaining problems, including the living conditions of indigenous people and serious racism and discrimination against people of African and Asian descent.
134. The Congo noted the implementation of the recommendations from the previous cycle, notably those on indigenous peoples and corporate social responsibility.
135. Israel noted the Strategy to Prevent and Address Gender-based Violence, which aimed to fill gaps in the support provided to diverse populations.
136. Costa Rica acknowledged the initiatives on including indigenous people in the decision-making process.
137. Lebanon noted the efforts of Canada to ensure the equal enjoyment of rights by non-citizens.
138. The delegation of Canada provided details of its efforts to reform the criminal justice system, to combat acts of violence and to address inequalities. In 2017 and 2018, the Government had introduced new legislation in Parliament. It aimed to strengthen the provisions of the Criminal Code to reinforce sexual assault laws, to enhance victim safety and strengthen criminal law in the context of domestic violence, and to reduce delays in criminal courts and ensure a fair and effective criminal justice system that was accessible to all Canadians.
139. The legislative framework covered hate crimes, discrimination and acts of violence based on race and religion. Four specific offences in the Criminal Code prohibited acts motivated by hatred that were committed against not only a person, but also a group or property. Canada had measures in place at all levels of government to prohibit and prevent targeting, profiling and harassment. The country's law enforcement and security intelligence officials investigated threats to national security and criminality based on available intelligence and information and did not target any particular community, group or faith.
140. Canada was collaborating with First Nations, Métis and Inuit peoples to develop a law aiming at the preservation of indigenous languages. The Government had voluntarily committed to continuing to improve services delivered to indigenous peoples.
141. Canada thanked the delegations for their active participation and their interest in the human rights situation in the country, and thanked civil society for its formal and informal participation in the review process.

II. Conclusions and/or recommendations

142. The following recommendations will be examined by Canada, which will provide responses in due time, but no later than the thirty-ninth session of the Human Rights Council:

III. Voluntary pledges and commitments

144. Canada assumed the following voluntary commitments:

144.1 Canada voluntarily commits to strengthening intergovernmental collaboration and public dialogue on human rights, through the development of a protocol for following up on the recommendations Canada receives from international human rights bodies and a stakeholder engagement strategy;

144.2 Canada also commits to enhancing our federal-provincial-territorial collaboration on human rights implementation through the creation of a senior intergovernmental mechanism;

144.3 Canada also commits to holding future federal-provincial-territorial human rights ministerial meetings.

145. In addition, the Government of Canada is pleased to make the following voluntary commitments:

145.1 To conduct human rights analyses to support the implementation of our international human rights obligations;

145.2 To improve the promotion and public awareness of international human rights in Canada;

145.3 To initiate a transparent process for ongoing consideration by federal, provincial and territorial governments of adherence to human rights treaties that Canada is not yet a party to;

145.4 To continue to take legislative and other steps to progressively realize the right to adequate housing as part of an adequate standard of living for its citizens;

145.5 To end, by March 2021, all long-term drinking water advisories affecting public systems on reserve;

145.6 To co-developing distinctions-based Indigenous housing strategies with First Nations, Inuit and Métis partners to ensure that future housing reform is reflective of their specific needs;

145.7 To continuing to improve services delivered to Indigenous Peoples — such as education, clean water, housing, and health services. We aim to achieve this through: the full implementation of Jordan's Principle to ensure that First Nations children receive the same health and social services and supports as other Canadian children; the full implementation of all the orders of the Canadian Human Rights Tribunal; and the co-development and transformation of the delivery of Indigenous child welfare.
